

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

INTRODUCTION

Although the family treated of in this work has not been definitely traced beyond Pierre de Carpentier of Messen, Flanders, yet its origin appears in "Histoire de Cambray et du Cambresis, par Jean le Carpentier," published at Leyden, 1664, vol. II., page 369:

"Since the year 1160 the family is known in the archives of the Abbey of Vauchelles to which much assistance was rendered by Barthelemy and Renaud Carpentier, issue of Roger, Sire de Gouy, as we learn from the Tournament of Auchin in the year 1096. Siger Carpentier and Godefroy, descended from the said Renaud, were held in high esteem in Cambray and adjacent parts about 1200. Siger gave, among others, the tithes of Attiche to the Abbey of Cisoing in the year 1265, as can be seen in the archives of that place. He was Seigneur de Vannes and one of the most eminent knights of his time and laid the foundation for a fair posterity, which settled in French Flanders, through his marriage with Berthe Dame en Arquenghem, by whom he had a son named Anseau, whose descendants maintained themselves with glory and fame as late as the year 1400, when some of them, because of disfavor, were obliged to retreat to France, where, to the present day, they keep up the rank of their ancient nobility and are Seigneurs de Berthier, de Crecy, de Machy, de Ratilly, de Marigny, etc.

"This House possessed in the Netherlands, where the main branch has been extinct for nearly a century, the Seigneuries de Vannes, d' Avesnes lez Obert, du petit Ribecourt, de Maire, de Hamarrée, de Tilloy, de Waignou, d'Aumont, de Flechinot, etc. It gave a bishop to Chartres and an abbot to St. Vaast in Arras; an almoner to Robert, Count de Flanders; governors to Therouane; grand bailiffs to Courtray; counsellors and gallant captains for armies to emperors, kings, and princes, and even governors to newly discovered and conquered countries of the United Netherlands, etc. It has distinguished itself through brilliant alliances by marriage with many noble houses. Some of the descendants of the aforesaid Godefroy de Carpentier, Sire de Daniel and d'Avesnes-les-Obert (benefactor of the Abbey of Vaucelles according to a title of the year 1280, and brother of the aforesaid Siger, Sire de Vannes), left for England and Holland, where they bear different arms, although descended from the same house which recognizes as its originators the ancient and illustrious Seigneurs de Gouy or Goy, who are so renowned in the archives of the abbies of St. Vaast d'Arras, Mont St. Eloy, Honnecourt, Mont St. Martin, etc., since the year 1036, which is mentioned by André Du Chesne in his genealogical works.

"Of this house was Jean le Carpentier, Treasurer-General of the Emperor Charles the Fifth, who by Marguerite de Langhe, daughter of Jean, had a daughter named Jeanne le Carpentier, who married Matthieu de Keinooghen, son of Jean Escuyer and Barbe d'Espelghem, who was father of Marie de Keynooghem married to Adrian van der Goes."

DE CARPENTIER FAMILY

I. 1. Pieter de Carpentier * was born during the middle of the fifteenth century, although the place of his birth and date have not been ascertained. He resided, however, at Messen, West Flanders, Belgium, of which city he was Treasurer ("General Account of the Abbey of Messines, March 5, 1507, to Easter, 1508," page 7, Archives of Messen). His first wife was Catharina Godtschalck whom he married in 1488 (Family Records). The date of her death has not been obtained, although it could not have occurred until after 1511, the date of her son Jan de Carpentier's birth. The arms of the Godtschalck family at Lille and Brussels are described by Rietstap as d'arg. à une tour de gu. The second wife of Pieter de Carpentier was Maria, widow of Jan de Villers and daughter of Philips van Myzele and Maria — (Family Rec.). He was Counsellor of the Prince de Chimay, from whom he received a grant of arms, de gu. à trois éperons d'or, la molette en bas. C. un lion iss.

* The material from which the present genealogy was compiled was obtained by Mr. J. L. van Dalen, Archivist of Dordrecht, part of which consisted of copies of a pedigree and other manuscripts relating to the de Carpentier family in possession of Jonkheer Coenen van Gravenloot, a descendant of the family, and the "Family Records" or "Family MSS.," frequently quoted, refer to such sources of information.

Encyclopædia Britannica:

"Chimay, a town of Belgium, in the Province Hainault, on the Eaublanc, or White Water, about 28 miles South of Charleroi. . . . In 1470 it was raised to the rank of a countship by Charles the Bold, and in 1486 was erected into a principality in favor of Charles de Croy."

The arms referred to are illustrated in Beschryvinge der Stad Dordrecht. Dordrecht, 1677. By Matthys Balen. Several illustrations also appear on two large folio pages entitled "Namen en wapenen der ed: agtbaare heeren oud raden ofte vroedschappen der Stad Dordrecht. Zoo als dezelve in den Iaare 1652; als Wanneer het Getal is Bepaalt op Veertigh Persoonen in Leven Geweest. Ex collectione Wilh. van der Lely, J. U. D. t'Amsterdam bij Hend. de Leth, fecit et excudit, A° 1740." The arms are given of "Pieter de Carpentier, Roelandsz.," "Mr. (Meester, Counsellor) Roeland de Carpentier, Pietersz.," and "1676 Pieter de Carpentier, Roelandsz., ob: 1687." In all the foregoing illustrations the arms are quartered with those of the de Villers family. An ancient painting, similarly quartered, is preserved at the Museum at Dordrecht.

The date of Pieter de Carpentier's death has not been obtained.

By his first marriage he had issue:

2. GUILJAM, Clerk of Wastene.
3. NICOLAAS.
4. JACOMINA.
5. CATARINA.

His wife died at Middleburg, Sept. 15, 1584, aged 72 years, and was buried at St. Peter's Church.

The de Villers arms appear in the Map of Arms in "Chronicles of Zeeland, by Smallgange" and an ancient painting is also preserved in the Museum at Dordrecht. They are de sa. à dix los. d'or, accolées et aboutées, 3, 3, 3, et 1. Cq. cour. C.; un vol d'or.

The van Hecke arms are given in Smallgange's "Chronicles of Zeeland," as de gu. au chev. d' herm., acc. de trois roses d'arg. An ancient painting of the arms is preserved in the Museum at Dordrecht.

Jacob van Hecke was born Feb. 30, 1484; died at Middleburg, Sept. 30, 1584 (N. S.), and was buried there at St. Peter's Church. He had issue:

PIETER, d. at Middleburg, Jan. 27, 1626, at 8 P. M., aged 72 years.

Roeland de Carpentier bore his paternal arms quarterly with his maternal, in which manner they continued to be borne by his descendants, and, according to which, they are described by Rietstap and so illustrated in the Dordrecht Map of Arms, previously mentioned.

Roeland de Carpentier and his brother Maillard left Flanders on account of religious persecution and went to Sandwich, England, where Roeland married, as already mentioned.

During Roeland de Carpentier's first stay in England he is referred to in "Works of the Marnix Society (Werken der Marnix-Vereeniging), Series II, Vol. I. Acts of the Conference of the Dutch Congregation in England, 1575-1609. Published by J. J. van Toorenenbergen. Utrecht, 1872." Page 3:

This day, after invoking the Lord's name, the first meeting was held in London of the deputies of the churches of London, Norwich, Sandwich, Colchester, Maydestone and Yarmouth, to which was afterwards added the deputy of Ilthforde (?), where, by the usual elective vote D. Gotfredus Wingius was elected as president of this assembly and Roelandt de Carpentier as secretary of the same.

On behalf of the congregation of Sandwich, Isbrandus Trabijs, servant of the Lord, and Rolandus Carpentarius, elder in the same congregation, are delegated to this conference, with full authority to treat with the brothers of the conference and to decide without any reservations or exceptions such matters as may be considered of benefit to the churches.

Colloquim or Conference of the Low German Congregation within this kingdom . . . commenced the XIII of May, Anno 1578.

Following is the sum of the letters of commission from each church, which have received individual consideration.

On behalf of the congregation of Sandwich, Ysbrandus Trabius, servant of the Lord, and Roland de Carpentier, elder of the same congregation, are delegated and authorized to act on all such matters as may be considered expedient in strengthening the Kingdom of Jesus Christ here or in our fatherland, all without detrimental consequences to our superiors.

Roeland de Carpentier was admitted to citizenship at Ypres, by purchase, Aug. 28, 1578 (General Archives of Ypres; Register of citizens No. 11, p. 293); became Pensionary of that city Aug. 18, 1578, and was sworn in Aug. 28th (Reg. of the Grand Council, 1567-1594, p. 56; Reg. of Official Oaths, 1576-1765, p. 4); he rendered accounts as Receiver of the Confiscations of the City and Castillany of Ypres, April 10, 1584, to Sept. 10, 1593 (Chamber of Accounts at Brussels); Warden of the Parish of St. Martin; was requested by the Eighteen Men to become their Clerk but declined; Member of the Embassy to the Prince of Orange at Antwerp, May 6, 1582.

The following is a copy of a manuscript in possession of Jonkheer van Gravensloot:

We, Servants of the Godly Word and Elders of the Congregation of followers of Christ at Yperen, witness to the truth of the fact that Roeland de Carpentier, Pensionary of this City, and Josyne van Hecke, his wife, are members of this our congregation, firm of faith and honest in the walks of life. We pray, therefore, that all brothers will view them in this light and receive them in their congregations. Done in our Church Council at Yperen this second day of April, 1584.

By order of the Council,

R. VAN LAREN. 1584.

We, Servants of the Word and Elders of the Reformed Church of Christ at Antwerp, witness: that Roeland Carpentier, Pensionary in the City of Yperen, and Sijnken (Josina), his wife, during the siege of said city has been deputized and sent here by his people and as well at Yperen as here, during the time they have been with us have deported themselves as pious members of this congregation; which they have shown by knowledge of the faith, use of the Holy Sacrament and further with edifying conduct. We pray, therefore, that each and all brothers do acknowledge them as such and to show them all becoming Christian love. At Antwerp, January 7, 1585.

In the name of our Consistory,

ANDRIES DE MEESTER,
Servant of the Word.

May 6, 1585, he was requested by the Magistracy of Goes to become Pensionary of that city, which he declined, as he hoped to be reinstated in his former office and possessions in Flanders. In 1589 we find him at Delft. "Works of the Marnix Society" (previously quoted), page 330:

Deputation to the churches at Amsterdam and "The Hague." The deputies of the two churches of Amsterdam and The Hague were interrogated as to what their views were on both sides, and as they all persisted in adhering to that which they had, as above mentioned declared in the Synod, it was consequently considered advisable by this Assembly to send, as have been sent to this assembly, to the church at Amsterdam, D. Reynerum Donteclock and Rolandum Carpentarium and to the church of The Hague D. D. Jeremino Bastingium and D. D. Julius Beyma, with proper instructions to induce the aforesaid churches not to take so decided an attitude in their resolutions in favor of the opposition; to present arguments on the other side to them and assure them they should effect that which will be of greatest benefit to all churches; and, on the other hand, if they could not infer the injury and disgrace which might result in consequence, etc.

Art. 5. Caspar Bygarden.

Caspar Bygarden has presented to the assembly a written protest in which he complains that his book was censured and condemned in the last Synod without his having been given a hearing in the matter and, as the said censure was recorded in the acts, that the same tends to a subtle privation of his ministry; to which the Synod graciously replied that it does not consider that his book has been censured as being heretical but only that it is not written in such a manner that it might be considered edifying to have it printed. Considering that he did not clearly understand the same, Reynerus Donteclock, Johannes Audellius, Daniel Colonius and Rolandus Carpentarius have been appointed to examine his book and they have declared that they have found many impertinent, obscure and preposterous ideas in the aforesaid book, any of which tend sufficiently to error, etc.

Roeland de Carpentier moved to Dordrecht, May 10, 1610. He died at Amsterdam October 6, 1618, aged 72 years. He was a very learned man in all languages and very religious in his family. He was Counsellor to Prince William of Orange at The Hague.

Josina van Hecke, widow of Roeland de Carpentier, died at Utrecht, April 20, 1628, about 75 years old. Death Register of the City of Utrecht:

"May 5, 1628, Dame Josina von Hecque, widow of Roeland de Carpentier, in his lifetime Pensionary at Ypres, residing in St. Pauwels leaving heirs of whom Doctor Carpentier is one. Buer Church."

"Doctor" refers to her son Dr. Servatius de Carpentier. Her will, on file at Utrecht, is as follows:

Last Will of Josina van Hecke, Widow of Roelant de Carpentier, in the Name of the Lord, Amen.

By the contents of this present and public instrument to every one public notice to be given, that in the year after the birth of our dear Lord Jesus Christ, One Thousand six hundred and twenty-eight, on Thursday, the 17th day of the month of April between six and seven o'clock in the afternoon or thereabouts, before me, a Notary of the Court of Utrecht, and the subscribing witnesses as required, appeared in her own proper person the reputable Josina van Heck, widow of Roelant de Carpentier, of blessed memory, living in Utrecht and well known to me (a Notary) sitting up in bed, sick in body but in full and complete possession of her reason and faculties (we the Notary and subscribing witnesses not being aware of anything to the contrary). By the grace of God prudently and wisely bearing in mind, in contemplating the illness of men, that nothing here on earth is more certain than death and nothing more uncertain than the hour of death, and wishing to provide against her last day and that uncertain hour of death by ordaining testamentary dispositions of her temporal possessions (by the grace of God) has made by force of a certain open letter of grant, issued by the Court of Utrecht under date of the 16th of April, 1628 last, clearly exhibited to us, notary and subscribing witnesses, her testament codicil and last will of all her possessions, real and personal, ordained and disposed, and makes, ordains and disposes of this in the form as follows:

Commending her soul when it shall part from earth into the hands of God Almighty, and her body to a Christian burial, revoking further all preceding testamentary dispositions, codicils, gifts or other, made by her before the date of the making or passing of this in any way whatsoever, and disposing anew of her temporal possessions, the testatrix has willed and ordained, as she wills and ordains by this, that the collective children of Govert Gelisz, her son-in-law, begotten by Isabella de Carpentier, his wife deceased, daughter of testatrix, by the death of testatrix have and retain all such 600 Pounds Flemish which she, the testatrix, holds against the aforesaid Govert Gelisz, her son-in-law, by a rent obligation (Bond for Rent) instituting them heirs to this, willing and desiring that those children will for this at the death of their testatrix abstain from all of testatrix' further belongings and inheritance. But if the same children should not be satisfied with this, but should say anything, or do or cause anything to be done against it, in such case the testatrix wills that they shall be excluded from and deprived of the said 600 Pounds Flemish, and will have to hold themselves satisfied with such legitimate share as by law out of the testatrix' possessions and inheritance is due, in this case instituting them the heirs to this legal share and no other part. Willing also that in this case the same children shall be charged out of the aforesaid legal share with all of the 300 Pounds Flemish which their mother, deceased daughter of testatrix, received at her marriage.

Further, testatrix bequeaths first to Pieter de Carpentier, her son, or his heirs if any, 300 Pounds Flemish, and this is an equivalent to the 300 Pounds Flemish which she gave to Jan de Carpentier, her son, and Isabella de Carpentier, her deceased daughter, each at their marriage, and in all of testatrix' other possessions, as well as of seignioriness as of her own real and personal, such as remain after; debt by death, will, bequest and funeral expenses have been met.

Testatrix has instituted and hereby institutes Pieter de Carpentier, her son aforesaid, or his heirs born to him, in the one half, and the children collectively of Jan de Carpentier, her son, or their legitimate heirs born to them by representation in the parents' place if any had died before testatrix leaving heirs, in the other half, to be the sole universal heirs of testatrix. And all this preserving and reserving to the same Jan de Carpentier, her son, his legitimate share to pass to them under their legal title to the properties and inheritance of testatrix, free and unencumbered, he not profiting thereby.

It is the will of the testatrix that this, her son, shall be debited against the aforesaid legitimate share of all which he has received at his marriage, and in every other way making this an express command.

All that has been written the testatrix expressly declared to be her testament, codicil and last will, which she wills and desires to be fully carried into effect after her death, and that so far as it may not be in the proper form of a testament that it shall operate and have the effect of a codicil or last will, or as a donation because of death or otherwise, giving it the very best and most forcible interpretation, notwithstanding any impediments to the contrary because of constitutional, state or other provisions, and notwithstanding any proper solemnities or rights as required may not have been followed or entertained. Reserving, however, to the testatrix full power and authority to totally or partially repeal, change, increase or diminish this, her testament, codicil and last will as often and as frequently as she desires and wishes to. At the end of which she stipulated and requested me, the public notary, to make and deliver to her one or more instruments in the best form.

Done at Utrecht at the domicile of Cathaline Liniers, standing under the Dom (church) in the year, month, day and hour aforementioned, in the presence of the worthy Assuerus van Borculo and Cornelis Pack, citizens of Utrecht, subscribing witnesses as required.

Le Théâtre de la Noblesse du Brabant, etc. Liege, 1705. Mercedes d'Honneur et de Noblesse dans le duché de Brabant, No. 42:

Jean Hellincx, lord of the Fief of Sibbe, native and resident of the city of Antwerp.

He represented that his family should be accounted from the country and city of Liege where it descended from the most honorable and principal, as much on account of its prominence as the many illustrious and noble alliances by marriage it had made there from time to time, bearing the coat of arms: un escu, d'or à l'ours debout de sable, escartellé d'argent, à une face d'azur, accompagnée de trois sautoirs de gueules; L'escu surmonté d'un Timbre d'argent grillé et liseré d'or aux Lambrequins et Bourlet d'or et de sable; cimier un ours naissant de l'escu, and, having established himself at Antwerp, where he had married Marguerite van Colen of an ancient and noble family of Germany, having always proved very zealous in the Holy Catholic and Apostolic Faith and the Royal service, maintaining soldiers at his own expense, and although offered the office of Grand Almoner, he preferred to continue his residence in the aforesaid city in greater style and with the same arms that his family had borne for three successive generations.

King Charles II. ennobled him to bear the aforesaid blazonry by Letters Patent executed at Madrid October 6, 1689.

We, the Burgomaster of the noble City of Liege, to all whom it may concern, Greeting: This will be certification and attestation, as is required by Sr. Jean Hellincx at present residing at Antwerp, who wishes to receive our letters testimonial in regard to the rank and deportment of his parents and predecessors who have lived in our aforesaid Town and City of Liege. To which complying favorably and wishing to administer justice to each and all whenever required, we certify and attest immediately to the information contained and by us seen in various documents in the form of letters produced before us to this effect: The late Sr. Servais Hellincx, great-grandfather of the suppliant seigneur, one of the Maîtres des Forges and most important manufacturers in the City of Liege, was in possession and Lord of a very old fief at Cibbe with right of the patronage of the church living and other prerogatives of the country of Faulconmont, which same fief the Sr. his son, of the same name, grandfather of the suppliant seigneur, was also possessed and lord of and was moreover Lieutenant Captain of the Old Crossbowmen (Vieux Arbalestiers) under Monsieur le Comte de Waroux from the year 1613 to the time of his Highness Ferdinand de Baviere, Bishop and Prince of Liege. We further certify that the Sr. Servais Hellincx, son and grandson respectively of the Seigneurs above mentioned and father of the same suppliant was in like manner Maître and Seigneur of the same fief, that family having been and being reputed among the most honorable and most important of our city as much by reason of the magnificence in which it lived as by reason of several very important and noble alliances which it made from time to time in aforesaid city. Wherefore we require that each and all shall believe herein.

Given in the said City of Liege under the signature of the Chief Clerk and under seal of the said city the 14th day of May in the year 1689.

By ordinance of the said Seigneurs.

(Signed) DU MOULIN.

Being sealed with the said seal stamped on a red wafer.

Subsequent to the death of his second wife, Johan de Carpentier married Maria van Lienden, Feb. 12, 1637. She was born at Yselstein, March 1, 1610. They appear to have resided at Yselstein. In her will she mentions her sisters Maria, Cecilia, Alidt and Anna van Lienden; also her husband Johan de Carpentier. Prior to her marriage to the latter, she had married first, Captain Godefroy Deurschot, second, Aelbert Vorsterman at Dordrecht, Johan de Carpentier being her third husband.

The following is a copy of her will:

In the name of the Lord Amen.

From the contents of this present manifest deed it is properly evident and manifest that in the year after the birth of our Dear Lord Jesus Christ one-thousand six-hundred and forty-nine, on the XIX of the month of May between eleven and XII o'clock in the forenoon or there about, in my office as public notary, admitted by the Noble Court of Utrecht and with the signed certificate present as is required, there appeared in her proper person Maria van Lienden, wife of Johan de Carpentier residing at Yelsteyn, known by me, the notary, as being sound of body, alive and well, and in full possession of her mental faculties and reason as was plainly apparent to us.

And declared that she, having observed and meditated upon the various human illnesses and that here upon earth nothing was more certain than death and nothing more uncertain than the hour of the same, to prepare for and anticipate the said hour had the last will and testament of all her goods without exceptions made in the form hereafter following:

First of all charging that when her soul shall have left this earth and is in the hands of God Almighty that her body shall receive Christian burial. Further revoking all former testamentary depositions which have been made or filed before this date with the exception of the reciprocal usufruct made between her and her husband which she holds of full value and still approves with this.

And making deposition anew regarding her temporal goods, she, the testatrix, bequeathed to Maria van Lienden, her eldest sister, wife of Adriaen Ockers, residing at Culenburch, or her heirs in case of her death, the sum of six guilders.

Item. To the children of Cecilia van Lienden, her deceased sister, former wife of Cornelis Vinck, also six guilders. And to the child of Alidt van Lienden, also her deceased sister, who was wife of Jacob van Mynden also six Carolus guilders.

And of all the other property of the said testatrix, real and personal, actual and owing to her estate, which may remain after the payment of her funeral expenses, just debts, testament bequests aforesaid and her funeral services, she has instituted and institutes herewith that at the expiration of the aforesaid usufruct her sole and universal heirs shall be: Albert Vosterman and Anna van Lienden, married people, her brother-in-law and sister residing at Dordrecht, with the understanding and express stipulation that in case of the death of both the aforesaid, all of the same estate shall have to succeed and go to the children who may be borne of and survive the aforesaid couple, and to Godefroy Deurschot, Anna van Lienden's child by a former marriage.

And in case they leave no children resulting from the said marriage the said Godefroy Deurschot is with this constituted sole heir.

All of which the said testatrix declared to be her absolute will and testament, which she wished should be executed absolutely upon her death. Such being according to all laws or customs which may be in force at Iselsteyn or elsewhere even if all solemnities (forms) required in this according to law were not observed nor maintained as should be, the same being considered as inserted, except as she, the appearer, may add hereto such revocation and alteration as may please her. Requesting that one or more properly executed deeds hereof be dispatched and delivered.

Done at Utrecht, at my office as notary public, situated there in the Snippervlucht; in the year, month, day and hour as above mentioned in the presence of Jan van Schoonhoven and Ellardus van Waey, citizens of Utrecht as witnesses hereto as is specially required.

On the 17th arrived there the ship "Ark of Noah" from the Board of Commerce of Amsterdam, and on the following day left the General Loncz with the ships Amsterdam, Utrecht, Hollandia, Munnickendam, Amersfoort, Provincie van Utrecht, the Zeeland Galley, the Bendracht, and the Yacht den Oyevaer, upon which were 599 men, and steering his course right for the Fatherland. His political advisers, who after departure of the General had full supervision, had resolved the following day that the Admiral Pieter Adriaensz Ita should sail for the West Indies with ten ships for the purpose of meeting the common enemy. During the succeeding days the utmost diligence was resorted to to prepare the vessels therefor selected. When the Admiral, besides the political adviser Servatius Carpentier, had left the fortification on the 14th for the City for the purpose of taking leave from the advisers and military heads, and the following day with a convoy of ninety soldiers under the command of Captain Daye. Returning to the fortification it so happened that just outside of the range of the Fort situated below the City, they experienced a great rainstorm which extinguished the fuses and wet the muskets. The enemy hidden on the other side of the River in ambush seeing this immediately crossed over, in consequence of which our people, so surprised, lost their courage. The Admiral and Captain did their utmost to steady them, but as the Brazilian enemy fired their arrows among them, and as they could not use their muskets, our people could not be held and fled without looking around. The Admiral, exposed to the greatest danger, defended himself courageously, but seeing that the men abandoned him and the enemy gathered strength, retreated to the City and would have been in a bad plight had not the Colonel and the other officers, with their men, come to the rescue, compelling the enemy to retreat. We lost thirty men, among which were two lieutenants and four ship clerks and the hospital assistant. The day after the Admiral returned with a boat to the fortification.

The majority determined that we should attack Pariba, and conquer the Fort situated near the harbor to prevent the entering or leaving of vessels. For this exploit they selected the Lieutenant Commander Steyn Callenfels, and the political advisers Carpentier and van der Hagen were to accompany him. It was arranged to add thirteen companies, making altogether about 1600 men.

The first of December was appointed a day to offer prayers to God Almighty that he would bless the intended exploit.

They were afraid that considering the season of the year the ships might get on shore on the coast if they went to the north of Pariba, and in consequence of the foregoing resolution the gentlemen who started on the voyage on the 2nd day of December received orders that the bulk of the force should not go north of Pariba; but if advice was received from Rio Grande, or any other place, that apparently it was possible to accomplish something, then in that case they might send something like 150 men. But full authority was given to undertake whatever was possible south of Pariba in their judgment. On the 3rd they sailed at daylight, and the next day found themselves at daylight abreast of Tamarica, and before noon the Admiral signalled that all captains of land and water forces should come on board of his ship. It was the political adviser Carpentier who was the first to move a resolution to undertake the attack on Pariba, and after each one had declared to be ready and to have the courage therefor, two things were deliberated for the purpose of attacking the enemy unnoticed. First, how it would be best to land; and secondly, how to land the troops in good order.

Voyage to Rio Grande under Commander Smient. The same leaders and the advisers who had been before on the voyage to Pariba went along. . . .

On the 25th (December) the political adviser Carpentier, the Admiral, the Major Bersteth, and some other naval and land captains, besides the engineer Pieter van Bueren, departed with the boats towards the shore and examined the entire coast between Punta de Marchena to Rio Grande, but found nowhere a location to land. . . .

Then the political adviser Carpentier advised that they enter the River and land above the Fort, but all the naval captains found great objections to this because they were afraid that one of the other ships might be fired at and sunk. For this reason it was finally decided that it was inadvisable to make an attack on the Fort of Rio Grande.

Resolved to attack Cabo St. Augustine. Everything being ready for the trip the Governor, the political advisers Carpentier and de Walbeeck, the Admiral, the lieutenant commander Steyn Callenfels left at night with 18 vessels, having on board 14 companies of soldiers. They arrived about midnight in the neighborhood of de Cabo, and here they encountered another five vessels cruising about there. The next morning before day they anchored, and the troops being ready the Governor and lieutenant commander, besides the advisers

Carpentier and de Walbeeck, entered the boats for advisory purposes and were landed with the military power. (The attack on de Cabo was unsuccessful.)

Voyage to Goyana.

It was necessary to make the River Goyana unfit for use by the enemy, which in addition to the Quartier was all that remained to him now the Yacht Canari voghel was ordered there with forty men to lay to in the mouth of the river. The next day it was learned from Portugees of that place that the enemy had removed the women; that there was a house in which there were 13 cases of sugar; and that the enemy's boat lay near hidden under water; in consequence of which on the following day several boats with the Company van Garstman and forty musketeers of Major Turlon, while at the same time the day before 50 men had been sent to the sugar mill mentioned before for the purpose of reconnoitering what the enemy was doing there, and also to see whether they could catch anything on the road which leads to Pariba and Goyana and Garasu and the Arryal.

Mr. van Ceulen, the colonel, and Carpentier followed in a small vessel, and having arrived at the pass or road which leads to the Ingenio River, they there encountered the troops who communicated the fact that they had found no one and had only heard that cattle was grazing in the neighborhood, which they had not been able to find yet, and they were commanded to search further.

The voyage to Pariba having been decided on, and everything for naval as well as for land purposes having been provided with forethought, it was undertaken on the 24th of November under the Commander of Cigismundus van Schuppe, besides Colonel Christoffel Artichofski and the two political advisers Servaes Carpentier and Jacob Stachouwer. (Pariba and the Forts were captured.)

He died at the Reciff, in Brazil in 1645, and the Death clock was tolled at Utrecht, Feb. 25, 1646. His death was registered at that place, March 2, 1646: "Den heer Servaes de Carpentier, Doctor of Medicine, ex-Assessor of the High and Secret Council of Brazil, died at Reciff (Death Register, Utrecht)."

La Vingne (Records of the Walloon Church, Dordrecht); married, at same place, June 22, 1637, Hester, daughter of Rev. Petrus Wassenburg and Sijbrechtsgen Verheem, who was born at Poortugal, near Rotterdam, 1615, and died at Amsterdam, Nov. 10, 1693. He was entered as a student of theology at Leyden Nov. 9, 1633; studied at Deventer, under Videlius, Professor of Theology, in 1633 and 1634, and at Leyden under Walaeus, Poliander and Thyssius, in 1635 and 1636. After leaving the University he went to Dordrecht where he resided with Rev. Petrus Wassenburg, Minister at that place, for the purpose of learning practical theology, which gave occasion to his marriage with the minister's daughter Hester.

Rev. Petrus Wassenburg was born 1586; married, first, Sybrechtgen, daughter of Rev. Johannes Verheem, late minister of the House ter Mijden; he married, second, Maria Michaels daughter who died Jan., 1638; called to Amersfoort March 10, 1629, where he remained twelve years, when he was called to Dordrecht, where he died April 7, 1655, aged 69 years (Balen, vol. They had also received the approval of their noble magistrates, and now they requested that the Classis would also approve the same. So be it. Rev. Casparus de Carpentier died at Amsterdam, May 12, 1667, and was buried May 17th in the Westerkerk of that city.

He is mentioned in all printed works as having been born in 1607, which is to be attributed to a wrong reading of the inscription under one of his portraits, saying "1650, aetate 43," the year 1650 merely indicating the date of his arrival at Amsterdam. On another portrait, however, is said "aetate 39," and van Bemmelen, in his description of the City of Amersfoort, says that he died 51 years old.

He wrote a poem for the book of his father-in-law, Rev. Petrus Wassenburg, "Dancing feast of the daughters of Shiloh, served with a piquant sauce out of God's Word" (Commission of the Walloon Churches, Library of the Society of Dutch Literature at Leiden); "The Ancient Fathers and Heathen Authors, Dordrecht, 1641," 12°; "David's Credo, dat is, David's gebed en geloof ofte troost tegen de bittere doodt, zijnde een verklaring van den XVI Psalm," Amsterdam, 12°. (Containing an account of "The Plague" which raged in Amsterdam in 1665); "Tranenvloet over Jarusalems teghenwoordige sonden en toekomstige wonden," Amsterdam 1661, 12°; "Den gewitten of bekeerden Moormaan, dat is, de onderwyzinghe van Philippus, de belydenisse en doop des Moormans en zijn vrolycke reyse na syn Landt," Amsterdam, 1662, 12°; and "Laatste uren van Rivet, Bassecourt, Langelius en Landtman," 12°.

There are a number of engraved portraits of Rev. Casparus de Carpentier, besides an oil portrait on marble, formerly in the possession of P. M. Baelaerts of Dordrecht.

REV. ROELANDUS CARPENTIER:

1674, April 9th.

Rev. Visscherus, Dep. at Caucas Maritimas, stated that the Honorable Councilors of the Admiralty, had called before them the Deputies of this Classis on certain affairs, and made known to them that it was the desire of their Honors, that there might be called by this Classis a minister for the ship of his excellency, Rear Admiral (Schout by nacht) Engel de Ruyter. There was particularly recommended for this position, Rev. Roelandus Carpentier, a candidate of this Classis, who appeared before the Assembly and was asked whether he was disposed to be employed as a minister on the National fleet. He showed himself willing, if such a call were made out for him, to accept it in the fear of the Lord. Whereupon after he had preached a sermon in the presence of the Assembly on the words of Paul in Rom. 8: 31, "If God be for us, who can be against us?" he was unanimously called by the Classis to the aforesaid service. And having been stante Classi examined on the principal articles of the Christian religion, in so far as could be done, on account of the shortness of the time, he gave such satisfaction that he was ordained to the Sacred Ministry, in the name of the Lord, with the laying on of hands. The Depp. ad. caus. Maritimas, will furnish him with the proper papers in the premises. VII. 81. XIX. 168.

REV. ROELANDUS CARPENTIER.

1674, Oct. 8th.

Rev. Roelandus Carpentier was conducted into the room, commissioned as preacher in the navy by this body, on board the ship of Mr. Engel de Ruyter, Rear Admiral, and gave to the Assembly an account and report of his work. He handed in also a good testimonial regarding his labors and deportment on board the aforesaid ship, with the request that he may remain under favorable recommendation, with a view to his promotion. The Assembly received this notice favorably, and on occasion, his advancement shall be kept in mind. VII. 104.

According to Van der Aa's Biographical Dictionary.

He became Minister in 1662, and served as such in 1679, with the Embassy to Moscow; having returned from there he became in 1680 Minister at Scharwoude (Classis of Hoorn) where he died in 1682. He must have been a student of the Low German art of poetry, though we have been unable to discover any of the prints of his pen (see Bilderdijck "Geschied des Vaderl.," vol. XI, page 281: "Algem, Konst. en Letterb. 1843," vol. I. page 295.).

He was buried in the Westerkerk.

Van der Aa's Biog. Dic., vol. III, page 203:

Roeland de Carpentier, was Raad in de Vroedschap (Member of the Town Council) and Justice of the city of Dordrecht, besides which, he was inspector of schools and of the City Library, also first dean of the brotherhood of St. Pieter, and lastly Director of the West India Company. He was frequently deputy to the Assembly of the States of Holland and Friesland. He died April 26, 1660 (1670), and had been married three times. His first wife was: Sara Leysten, by whom he had three sons, among whom, Pieter de Carpentier, born April 18, 1651, was Honorable or "Mansman" of the Court and High Tribunal of South Holland in 1674. By his second wife, Lucia Repelaar, widow of Waltherus Kools, he had one son and one daughter. His third wife, Josina Sonnemaus, presented him with one son and two daughters.

He was a student of the sciences, a lover of poetry, and left many loose poems both in Latin and Dutch, which were greatly commended in his time, though they would, at present, only have placed him among the indifferent poets. No properly spoken collection of his poems exists, though between the years 1640 and 1670, few works were printed in Dordrecht in which one does not find poems by his hand.

Privately printed by him is:

Bredajae et Celsiss. Principis Auriaci Athenaeum, versibus Auriacae, quae Bredae est, auditorio majori, die 27 Martii 1647. Bredae ex officina Johannis a Waesberge illustris scholae ac Collegii Auriaci Typographie Jurati.

For his celebrity, however, he is more indebted to his translation of the Verhaelboecken van de Vereenig de Landschappen van Nederland van den Kardinael Bentivoglio. Rotterdam, 1648, 12°.

He must also have published:

Historie van het leven en sterven van den Heer Johan van Oldebarneveld, waarachtelijk beschreven door een liefhebber der waarheid 1648.

PIETER DE CARPENTIER. Van der Aa's Biog. Dic.,
vol. III, page 200:

Pieter de Carpentier, the younger, was the fifth Governor of the Dutch Indies. Of his early life little or no particular mention is made.* It is only known that he was born in or about 1588 and was a native of Amsterdam (other references say Antwerp). He must also have been a man of no mean origin as he was invested in the year 1616 with the important office of Chief Factor of the ship "de Getrouwheid" sailing for India. Having spent two years in India he was appointed Counsel Ordinary and Director General of Commerce by Governor Jan Pieterszoon Koen, at the time Governor of Dutch India. In this position he displayed great ability to the decided advantage of the Company, in consequence of which he was proposed by Koen to the Directors of the East India Company as his successor whom in 1623 he succeeded.

The well known conspiracy of the English at Amboina made it very unpleasant for Carpentier during the early part of his administration and caused far reaching bitterness, both in India and Europe, between the two nations.

Under the supreme direction of Carpentier, two expeditions sent out by Koen a short time previous in 1623 discovered the Gulf of Carpentier, so named after Carpentier.

* The parentage of Pieter de Carpentier, the Governor-General, has not been ascertained, although there would seem to be no doubt of his belonging to the Dordrecht family, as he bore the same arms.

In the following year the Dutch took possession of the important island Tayouan or Formosa. The commercial interests with Ceylon and the main land of India were also constantly increasing, and in 1626 a favorable alliance was made with the ruler of Malabar.

After having served his office with great credit for four years and eight months, Carpentier transferred the same September 30, 1627, to his predecessor, Jan Pieterszoon Koen, who had returned to Batavia on the 27th of September.

Thereupon he left on the 12th of November (1627) with four richly laden vessels for the Fatherland, where he arrived June 3, 1628, and made a very favorable report to the Directors of what had taken place during his administration. In consideration of his zeal in advancing the interests of the Company, he was presented by the Directors, besides his salary with 10,000 guilders, a gold chain and medal to the value of 2000 guilders, and a sword valued at 400 guilders.

In October of the following year he was elected Director of the East India Company at the Amsterdam Chamber, which distinguished post he filled until his death which took place Sept. 5, 1659.

In 1630, the first year in which he occupied the office of Director, he was sent to England as authorized deputy for the mediation of the previously mentioned Amboinan differences. While he was thus engaged in London, the Directors were constantly and strongly urging him to again accept the Governorship of Batavia, but, in spite of the fact that much fame and profit would accrue to him in this office, he persistently declined the offer.

Carpentier was quite tall of stature, and had heavy hair and beard, thick moustache, brownish eyes; was fair and of ruddy complexion and had a pointed chin. When he returned to the Fatherland he was 40 years of age.

He was frequently attired in a yellow coat with a band, over which he wore a black cloak, so that from outward appearance he bore more resemblance to a minister than a merchant. His portrait was painted by Valentyn who added the following inscription:

De vorstelijke koets der Ooster-Maatschappy,
De gulde toom van die bekommerlyke wagen,
Ten deel door hem gemaakt, die waardig was te dragen
Die naam, en ook 't bestier de rossen in de Ley
Van Indiën, wierd aan de Carpentier bevolen,
Hy maakte, en mende die, en meide bei de Polen.

His portrait appears in du Bois Vies des Gouvern. Généraux.

Dubois, supra, says he had but one son, Philippus, who was chief at Poelve in 1661-62.
